THE PEACE RIVER FIRE

The fire at Peace River is a bad blow to that interesting town, the more severe because it comes at a time when farm profits are down, business slack, and building loans difficult to get and costly. But the blow is not fatal, and will not permanently check the growth of the community.

The question now arises why a town should be built at the crossing of the Peace, and they are equally sound reasons as to why it should build its damaged business up again. The district and the district and the strategic location of the town have not been affected by this misfortune, and its speedy recovery is assured.

CANADA'S WHEAT CROP

The final estimate of last season's wheat crop, given out at Ottawa, shows that Alberta produced 136,000,000 bushels of wheat, while Saskatchewan was 121,000,000 bushels and the Manitoba yield 27,000,000. Alberta in 1931 was thus the big wheat province of Canada; a position it cannot hope to hold in a season when Saskatchewan gets the normal amount of rain.

The total western crop amounted to 284,000,000 bushels; that for all Canada to 304,000,000. Manitoba, the smallest producer of the prairie provinces, thus produced 10 per cent more wheat than the eastern provinces and British Columbia combined. The total crop for all Canada was 116,000,000 bushels less than that of 1930.

In Alberta slightly less than 100 acres of wheat were sown while Saskatchewan was nearly 10,000,000 acres; but Manitoba 2½ million acres. The Manitoba yield was thus 10 4-5 bushels per acre sown; the Saskatchewan yield 1 5-15; and the Alberta yield 17 bushels per acre.

Despite the enormous cut down the yield per acre in all three provinces, and play havoc with any calculation as to the relative productivity of the soil of the three provinces based upon last season's show.

TOYO SAYS NOTHING

The Japanese are a good deal better at fighting than they are at explaining what they are fighting for.

Commenting on the protests lodged by Britain, the United States and France against the slaughter at Shanghai, a spokesman of the foreign office said: "China is determined to show China that she will stand for no nonsense." He followed it with the equally informing observation that Japan is quite willing to do her share "to thwart the greedy war lords who are responsible for a large part of China's troubles."

So there you are, and that's that. All the reader has to do, after perusing these official announcements, is find out for himself if the Japanese were sent to Shanghai to fight or why Japan's war planes were sent out to rain death and wounds alike on soldiers and civilians in that congested and defenseless city.

This formula has at least one redeeming feature. It leaves outside world entire liberty of action to judge for itself why the attack was made. Tokyo is too courteous to suggest that foreigners are incapable of coming to a conclusion on that point. It is also too courteous to tell them why it was taking possession of Manchuria, only assuring them that it could not be that Japan had any territorial ambitions in that part of the world.

It is the lack of courtesy that humanity cannot comprehend the subtleties and niceties of Oriental reasoning. It may as well stop trying, and accept the Shang-hai slaughter as being exactly what it seems to be. Tokyo has nothing to say to the contrary.

DESIGNS ON THE NATIONAL

The signs multiply that an outstanding feature of the session of parliament is planned to be an onslaught on the efficiency, status and management of the Canadian National Railways. During the last two weeks, the press has wailed the whoop, in tones which betray a confident hope that a formidable band of critics will be ready to attack when it is launched.

Mr. T. H. Wackett, member for Stanstead, has been the most vocal critic. As he claims, the National has run the C.P.R. into financial difficulties. Dr. Cowan, member for Regina, was equally explicit as to his intentions, but less explicit as to the ground of his grievance; and gave his hearers to understand that he is going to propose to shut up the management of the National and reduce that enterprise to a "strict business basis," as defined by Dr. Cowan.

There is nothing in this to surprise the public. It is something that appears to have been something of the same pattern behind the scenes. The air has been full of railway "amalgamation" talk. The western train service has been readjusted to new schedules, with a view to discovering and minimizing losses of business to the National—and to the towns which depend chiefly upon that system for railway service throughout their trading area. With the best service of today, the situation of 1929 to handle, even if it had the traffic of 1929 to handle.

What part the Government has been taking in this conspiracy, if any, or what attitude it will take when the fight is on, is an unknown factor. What, however, is known is that, whatever business it is to protect this great public property, has been making speeches which were calculated to do anything but that. Fortunately, the Minister of Railways is not of the Government. What Mr. Bennett says will "go," both with the Ministers and with their conspiring supporters. The loudly heralded attack will peter out to a face-saving demonstration if the Premier says the word.

Forty Years Ago

From the files of the Edmonton Bulletin

There is no feature of the Northwest that has such a terror for those who reside in other parts of the world as the winter. The land may be more pleasant and productive—but, oh, the winter! How do you stand it? There is no doubt that the rule for the Northwest is cold weather in winter. That it is very cold is a fact, but the reason it is so cold is not taken it is felt severely and may even be fatal. Without going into an argument to prove the now accepted fact that it is the severe and assured winter to which Manitoba and the Northwest owe its present wealth, it is safe to say that the southern regions in the United States, it may not be out of place to mention that although the present has been an unusually cold and stormy winter in the eastern part of the provinces and Manitoba, it has been considerably milder in the western part.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

The country has been set for a new school to be built at Clover Bar.

J. Reed of Dawson City arrived in Edmonton this week. Mr. Reed left Edmonton four years ago in company with Messrs. T. Kincaid, C. Walker, F. Walker and J. Carradine of Aigleola, who were engaged in the construction of the new school.

The address of most speakers was to be better if the words were omitted.

Even if they are well used, usually when they hear them they want to know what to do about it.

He is caught, or rather, he is given the monotonous or a talk that is equally boring.

That is the trouble. The speaker is illuminating and impresses a point which the speaker is to be critical, independent, analyze and come out and see for oneself.

It is not the speaker who wants to lead him to believe that he is right, but the speaker who wants to lead him to believe that he is wrong.

That great minds do not run the world.

That only fools and dead men run the world.

That it is easier to attack the ideas of the person than to make a speech.

WHEAT FUTURES OF HALF CENT

Canadian Press

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 3.—Sporadic export trade overseas gave a lift to wheat prices here today. Initial hour gains of one cent were easily held until the closing minutes when a new record was set at 94¢ a bushel. Values closed 94¢ a bushel.

Prices closed at 93¢ a bushel while October rose 9¢ to 66¢.

Prices of wheat sold to foreign buyers were placed at between $60,000 and $100,000 per carload. It was believed that the new Canadian wheat crop would be well received overseas through Vancouver.

Canadian grain markets reflected in the demand for Canadian wheat and indicated that a good business was to be had in the Canadian wheat market.

In his review of the export situation, James Richardson maintained his estimate of world wheat requirements for the year at 1,700,000,000 bushels, of which 850,000,000 will be absorbed in Europe.

Canadian grain markets reflected Russian exports from $80,000,000 to $85,000,000 bushels and estimated that it would be necessary to add 100 million bushels a year than previously calculated.

It was reported in export circles that Canada will make a limited bid for deficiency in the spring.

There was a general feeling of grains held abroad in light trade.

DOROTHY DIX

A correspondent asks: "What is the matter with the modern home?" To which I unhesitatingly reply: "They don't see enough soft soap in it." A fine young man and woman get married. They are very much in love with each other, but they have no place to live in which the dove of peace will not continuously nibble at them. Instead of that happening, however, they are soon fighting like the proverbial Kilkenny cats over the house. Both husband and wife are determined to make their marriage a success, ready to try every means.

It is evidently true that the number of really happy homes, the homes that people enjoy and that the happiness of life are as few that we can count all that we possess. We all know that each other's company seems to spare. Why, when the doctors want us to send us to some place where we will be surrounded by the best food and cheerful surroundings and be freed from worry, we always seem to stay where we are, that marriage is a failure.

Yet these men and women who make matrimony such a bad bet and domestically so altering any good family relationship, were once a real fond of each other and will tell and make sacrifice to make their marriage a success. But the one thing they will not take the trouble to do is to try to get along amicably and pleasantly.

Yet there are each other's little weaknesses and peculiarities of temperament, which if it is the easiest thing in the world to manage John or Mary if you just do it in the right way, they seem to be the most difficult to manage. And the result is a great family row ever something that might have been settled without a rifle if only it had been properly handled.

Every husband knows that he can't drive his wife out of bed, but he can, and has, in his time, given the whole distance anywhere he wants her to go; every wife knows that there is a necessary time when she must be allowed to prevent him and ask favors and import new ones. But do husbands and wives know that the knowledge of when he loves her and when she loves him, when they meet, that there are other wives who do, prevent the need and special care of the husband? And when it makes that makes them married people in the community?

Apparently most married people never have any time to themselves and eat a dish for daily family consumption. Therefore they rarely serve it on the home table. They

Your Baby and Mine

BAD TEMPER: WORST IN LATE AFTERNOON

From earliest memory the cloud has a "peevish" period. Again and again through the day it grows darker and darker until at the end of the afternoon the baby is so irritable she cries most of the time.

That's the fatigued period, too, of day, of course, and it continues to be so until the baby is old enough to nod for all shudders. The won't content, the won't sleep, the won't drink, the won't turn, the won't sit up, the won't come to the vamps and alights who flatter and caress them and feed them on the breast, the won't share, the won't share and which is never handed to them by those to whom they are married.

DOROTHY DIX

There is strength in being armed against irritations when one knows the exact reason for them. Adults sometimes know when they are tired; "I know I'm cross but I'm just not good," says the baby. You have no idea what I've been through today," says the baby, repeating the words of a tired adult. One is useful if patient or understanding when one is fatigued, when the baby is fatigued, when the baby is fatigued. Bedtime is not the time to insist that one can't sleep because the baby is still awake, to argue with a drowsy mother about finding that she is specious when she gives you your pudding. That baby can't give you your pudding.

The baby is a flaming point, children are flaming points, the flaming point, children are flaming points, ready for the lightning and the inevitable result is a scented conflagration.

What New York Is Wearing

With the heat rises regularly from four to six and mother knows perfectly that it is the time when an air conditioner is a must. She may be filled in with a room without windows, a warm room, then a cool room, warm room, then a cool room, clean clothes. With the heat comes the evidence of fatigue in children even when their feet until they are ready to drop and will wear them up yet again; when the body is tired, the mind is tired and raves. There is a time for everything—obedience, obedience, training him to be a good boy at the tag end of a child's weary day.

MILLIE'S MOTHER HAS LET HER ON THE DECK ALONE, HAVING BEEN TOLD SHE WILL NOT WALK UP AND SPEAK TO HER.

IT HAS BEEN ARRANGED THAT SHE DOES—MAMA WILL WALK INTO THE PICTURE AND MAKE A SMALL INTRODUCTION HERE TO HIM.

THE BOAT LANDS IN A FEW DAYS—

IF SHE EXPECTS TO LAND AGAIN, SHE WILL HAVE TO HURRY—
TIME IS SHORT—
THEY ARE TOGETHER NOW—
SHE HAS BEEN TRAILING THEM—WANTING HER CHANCE—

RIGHT Through the Net

AHEM! THE TIME HAS ARRIVED—

OH—THERE YOU ARE—
I'VE BEEN HUNTING FOR YOU
FOR HOURS—
WE'VE LAUGHED ALL OVER THE BOAT FOR YOU—

BUT MARY IS CAGY—
HE WILL TAKE NO CHANCES
SHE GAVE HIM ON HER MIND ON THAT IS ENOUGH—

WITH MAMA—
